Calling all spring breakers! If you're hitting the road and heading towards sunnier skies for a much-needed vacation, the last thing you want to worry about -- while sipping fruity cocktails -- is high-maintenance hair, right?

So we took inspiration from the Miami Beach International Fashion Week 2011 and compiled the chicest and simplest vacation hairstyles -- perfect for a day at the beach in your sexy two-piece or a glammed-up night on the town.

"We're seeing a movement toward smoother, shinier hair, regardless of the styles worn," said Antonio Corral-Calero, the mastermind behind all the runway looks and Moroccanoil Artistic Director. And just in time for spring break, many of those looks were adorned with gorgeous, ocean-like waves. Call it the New Wave, if you will!

The Wavy Chignon

One of the most dramatic hair looks on the runway was a series of innovative chignons inspired by portraits by famed Spanish artist Julio Romero de Torres, as remembered by Corral-Calero during his childhood in Barcelona. The deep side-parted hair was swept over to cover the ear on one side with a subtle wave pattern. It was then pulled back and styled in smooth, rolled layers of hair that formed unique, very modern designs in the shape of a sea shell. Perfect for the beach!

The Long Wave

Beautiful, full-bodied waves also energized the runway.
